Renuka Kimber – Class of 2003

Renuka Kimber, Entrepreneur, Technology & Growth Specialist, Board Director

Renuka Kimber (née Rajadurai), attended Loreto Mandeville Hall from Prep until year 12, graduating in 2003.

Renuka has an incredibly rich and diverse academic and professional background, having worked in a range of industries in Melbourne, Sydney, New York and London. She has over 15 years' experience transforming the brands of leading organisations, through technology and growth strategies, across the public, private and not-for-profit sectors. She credits her career success to date to not having a plan, and staying open-minded about every opportunity that arises.

Renuka currently leads the development of client propositions to drive the development of new services and solutions in the transactions, tax and law space, at global management consulting firm, KPMG. Renuka is a strong advocate for gender equality in the firm, representing the group in the Deals, Tax & Legal Inclusion & Diversity Committee. This committee is responsible for generating tangible actions to progress the firm-wide I&D strategy, divisional gender targets, and address I&D related challenges and opportunities that may arise.

Renuka is also the Co-founder of luxury menswear label Christian Kimber (National Designer of the Year 2019), for which she is responsible for business strategy, brand and marketing. As part of her profile in the fashion industry, Renuka is a regular writer for both GQ and Vogue, contributing industry insights from both the perspective of a technology & growth specialist, as well as a fashion business owner.

Renuka is passionate about supporting change for good and for young people, in particular. Alongside her roles with KPMG and Christian Kimber, she extends her breadth of expertise to the prevention of youth homelessness as a Board Director for Kids Under Cover, one of the largest Victorian charities. She holds a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Melbourne, certificate in professional writing from New York University, Master of Media & Communications from the University of London and an MBA from Melbourne Business School.
